

Perspectives of Nature: A Creative Writing Exercise

Step One Go out into nature. This could be your backyard, a local conservation area, or a nearby park.

Step Two Find something that catches your attention: a tree, a bug, a river...anything!

Step Three Use the space below, or your own notebook, to write a “day in the life” story from the perspective of the thing you have chosen. Think about what it may think, feel, and do in a day. What would it see and experience? What or who might it interact with? Take as long as you need and have fun with it!

Step Four Read your story to others and see if they can guess what you wrote about!
