

Mindfulness Practices

Whether you take 5 minutes or an hour, it is important to embrace the beauty and healing powers of the environment. Complete these mindfulness practices in nature, this could be your backyard, a local conservation area, or a nearby park.

Check in with yourself as you take part in this practice. Notice how your mood changes, feel your muscles relax, and embrace a deeper connection with your surroundings.

Be gentle with yourself; if your mind starts to wander, that's okay! Bring yourself back to center and focus on your practice. Enjoy!

Take 60 seconds to stop and listen Try closing your eyes to focus.		How many smells can you differentiate?
Focus on how each step feels as you walk Notice changes in terrain or soil composition.		Look for signs of life Do you see any new growth, tracks, scat, bird calls, etc.?
Breathe Take a few deep breaths in through your nose and out through your mouth. Try closing your eyes too.		Focus on three levels of eyesight Look at the ground, eye level, and above.
Relationship to trees As you breathe in, trees provide oxygen to you. As you breathe out, you provide carbon dioxide to trees.		Take 60 seconds to stop and clear your mind What did you notice? How do you feel?
Reflect on how you feel after using these practices		Take 5 minutes to use these practices together
